The Boston Journal printed a large cut of Herbert Batrick in its Thursday morning edition and gave him high praise in the hockey game on Wednesday, between the High school team of this town and Boston English High.

Dr. Wood will address the Sunday evening audience at First Baptist church, on the twenty-second, on the theme, "Four anchors out of the stern." The public is cordially invited to participate in these helpful and inspiring meetings.

Religious developments of seventy years, will be the subject on which Rev. F. L. Masseeck will address his parishioners on Sunday morning. The 70th anniversary of the dedication of the Universalist church of this town occurred today, Jan. 20.

The Peirce and Wins Coal Co. has issued a telephone directory to the patrons and friends of the firm, which is not only useful and convenient, but the picture which adorns it is too cute for anything, and one has only to look at it to be put in good humor with himself and the world.

The program of music at the First Baptist church for Sunday, Jan. 22, will be as follows:

Organ, Verrier, Dubois; anthem, "Praise the Lord," Handel; anthem, "O that I had wings like a dove," Smotrich; offertory, Andante, Guilmant; doct., "Watchman, what of the night?" Sargent; organ, Pastorale, Faulkes.

The Men's Club of the Universalist church will hold their meeting on Monday evening next, the supper being

The Middlesex conference of Universalist Sunday schools meets in the First Universalist church to-day, Jan. 20. There will be a symposium at 4.15 and supper at 6.15 p. m. The evening session will open at 7.30, with an address by Rev. D. S. Winchester, D. D., educational secretary of the Congregational Sunday School Association.

The Walden Outing Club, officered by George W. Duffy president, Louis F. McKenna vice, J. J. Dale treasurer, and Wm. Sullivan secretary, gave their annual mid-winter dance in the Auditorium on Monday evening. It furnished a highly enjoyable evening for the large number of friends attending and was a success for the management. Carey's orchestra furnished the music.

At the annual meeting of the Universalist church last week, announcement was made of the receipt of a gift, to be set apart as the foundation of an endowment fund, to accumulate, both by other gifts, and also the interest, until it reaches a certain sum, when the entire income shall be used by the trustees according to their best judgment. The gift was accepted with gratitude and placed in the hands of the trustees. It has been designated as the "Bishop Christmas Endowment Fund."

Camp No. 45, Sons of Veterans, held a whist party in Grand Army Hall, Wednesday evening, when they and their friends who enjoy whist had a pleasant evening. Mrs. Byron Harwood took the first prize and Mrs. Alfred H. Knowles the second, while the others given souvenirs were Wm. A. Stevens, L. W. Floyd, B. W. Ham, C. F. Jaffreys, Mrs. O. J. Sebold, C. B. Harley.

The committee of arrangements consisted of W. F. Stevens, C. B. Harley, H. H. Bacon, O. J. Sebold, Fred Ennis, Clifford Ross, E. H. Griffin. Consolation prizes were given to Mrs. E. H. Griffin and E. W. Ennis.

While coming downstairs in her home on Thorndike street, a few days ago, Mrs. Moore missed her footing and fell the entire length of the stairs, striking her head and cutting it badly. Mrs. Moore had a basket of clothes, which she was carrying down preparatory to washing them and the basketful of clothes probably broke her fall and thus saved her from more serious injury. Dr. Daniel Buckley was called and he found it necessary to take 10 stitches in Mrs. Moore's head to close the wound. No bones were found to be broken and it is thought that other than the scalp wound no serious injuries were sustained.

Mr. and Mrs. Wanton, of 47 Forest street, had a narrow escape from serious injury Tuesday morning, in their home. The kitchen fire had gone out during the night and Mr. Wanton attempted to light a new one, and shortly after he had lighted the fire there was an explosion in their home and the fire and bits of the front of the stove flew in all directions. Mr. Wanton received a piece of the stove in the face and Mrs. Wanton was also bruised, but neither one was seriously injured. During the night the hot water front of the stove had frozen and when the heat struck the frozen pipes there was a generation of steam in the pipes and hence the explosion.

Tuesday evening, in Odd Fellows' Hall, the recently elected officers of Jas. Ray Cole Lodge, K. of P., were publicly installed. The hall was filled with both sexes, and the work of installing the officers was performed by Supreme Representative John Ballantine and suite in a most gratifying manner. The members of the local lodge had guests from lodges in surrounding towns and cities, and the evening was passed in a most enjoyable manner. The officers installed were:

M. J. Manning, C. C.; Arthur B. Moulton, V. C.; Leo L. Katon, prelate; Wm. J. Henderson, M. of W.; Waldo A. Bacon, K. of R. and S.; Henry M. Binney, M. of F.; A. F. Breed, M. of E.; Frank Haven, M. A.; Oliver McDonald, I. G.; J. A. C. Stewart, O. G.

Following the installation a fine programme was presented, and consisted of piano selections by Waldo A. Bacon, reading by Miss Laura Belden, vocal numbers by Stanley Miller, monologue by Miss Fannie Stinson, tenor numbers by Gray Fifield, club swinging and bell swinging by Donnie Dineen. The evening closed with a collation, and the committee in charge was Waldo A. Ba-

The fire in the stove did not do any damage to the interior of the room and was extinguished in a very short time by Mr. Wanton.

Supt. Wm. Bradley, of the local moth work, has the applications in hand for work of this nature on private estates, sent him in response to circulars issued in the fall. These are being attended to in their order as far as possible. All will be looked after in an efficient way by the town force in due season and there is no need to feel exercised about the matter. It is much wiser to let the town men do this work, under the direction of Supt. Bradley, for others are apt to prove unreliable. It is gratifying to note that citizens are looking after this matter of moth extermination sharply, for it augers well for the future welfare of the town.

The funeral of Robert Adams, husband of Mrs. Catherine Murray Adams, was held from his late residence, 7 Henderson street, Wednesday morning. Services were held in St. Agnes church, consisting of a solemn high mass of requiem which was celebrated by Rev. George H. Quigley celebrant, Rev. Michael J. Owens, pastor of St. Bridget's church of Lexington, deacon, and Rev. Joseph P. Lawless subdeacon. The service was attended by a large number and there were many beautiful floral tributes. The bearers were John Harrkins, Thomas Adams, Frank Adams, William Haggerty, John Donahue and Nicholas Burke. Interment was in Calvary cemetery.

The funeral of Mrs. Hannah O'Brien Collins, wife of Patrick Collins, was held Sunday afternoon at her late residence, 43 Beacon street. The body was taken to St. Agnes' church, where services were held by Rev. George H. Quigley. There were many floral tributes. Interment was in Mt. Pleasant cemetery, Monday morning in St. Agnes' church, a high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Fr. Quigley. Mrs. Collins was a resident of this town many years, and is survived by her husband and two sons, Denis J. Collins, past grand knight of Arlington Council, Knights of Columbus, and Timothy F. Collins of Boston. The family has the sympathy of the community, this being the second death in the family in six weeks, the only daughter dying a short time ago.

Sunday morning, Jan. 14, in St. Agnes' church, a solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated for Miriam J. McDonald, who died Friday, Jan. 6th, from scarlet fever. Miss McDonald was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. McDonald of Brooks avenue, and was 15 years of age. The mass was celebrated by Rev. Joseph P. Lawless, with Michael J. Owens, pastor of St. Bridget's church, Lexington, deacon, and Rev. George H. Quigley, subdeacon. The service was attended by a very large number of classmates and several of the teachers from the Crosby school, and a large number from the Sodality of the church. The music for the service was sung by members of the choir of the church and Miss Lucy Nealon, of West Medford, presided at the organ.

The treasurer of the First Baptist church reported at the annual meeting that the total collections for benevolence for 1910 was $1,905.47. Missions abroad received $692.21. Missions at home received $778.97. This does not include local charities or the beneficence of the Sunday school, the Young People's Society, or the women's missionary organization. The latter society contributed $267.90. Of this amount $82.00 went for missions abroad and $107.00 for missions at home.

George W. McClellan, proprietor of the well known local express in his name, was out for the first time on Monday of this week since he suffered an almost fatal attack of pneumonia some eight weeks ago. After recovering from pneumonia he underwent an operation for the removal of a tumor on his head just back of the right ear. Dr. E. D. Hooker performed the operation at his office, on Pleasant street, assisted by Dr. Merrill E. Chapman of this town, and which apparently has been attended with success in all particulars although the trouble was more serious than at first supposed. Mr. McClellan showed unusual fortitude in going through the ordeal for no anesthetics were administered.

Arlington Boat Club established a new team single-string record in the match with South Boston Yacht Club Tuesday evening at Arlington, with a figure of 557, and defeated the yachtsmen four straight points. The South Boston bowlers declared after the match that it was the first time they had ever lost four points in one match since they have been in the Suburban Interclub League. The summary:—

THE FOURTH ESSENCE

It Helped Its Owner to Obtain His Object.

By CLARISSA MACKIE
Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Bob Pendleton and I had been friends for years until the inevitable woman stepped in between. For a while we were rivals for Eleanor's love, and then Pendleton lost out and disappeared entirely from our lives.

Eleanor lived only a few brief years, and I, who was then bereft of both friend and wife, was more alone than I had ever been. My business was of such nature that I had much leisure—more than was good for me—and instead of returning to my home city, where old friends and old haunts awaited me, I closed the house where Eleanor and I had spent the brief and happy years of our married life and, winding up my business affairs, became a wanderer on the face of the earth.

I became absorbed in the study of Byzantine architecture and thus at the close of our year was lingering in Constantinople.

One night I was sitting in my favorite cafe dreaming over the events of the day when Pendleton's name sounded so distinctly in my ears that I leaped to my feet and looked around. The cafe was quite empty save for one or two Turks in a distant corner, the slipshod waiters and myself.

Bewildered, I sank back in my seat, only to be assailed by the insistent repetition of Pendleton's name. It seemed to be beating against some finer consciousness and was not, as I had at first supposed, an actual vocal demonstration.

Then, forgetting the bitterness he had held against me and remembering only the pleasure of our long friendship, I was impelled to go to him. I felt that he needed me—that somehow, in some way, he was calling me to come to him—and, following some blind instinct, I returned to my house, placed my courier in charge of my belongings, packed a portmanteau and at dawn the next morning had taken steamer for India.

With me constantly was the suggestion that Pendleton called me, and, as if guided by this invisible thread of desire, I entered a new country. At Dinahpore I secured guides and hastened down to the ruins of the ancient city of Gaur.

We reached Gaur at sundown of a breathless day, and my arrival seemed to signal the departure of my fancies concerning Pendleton and his desire to see me. Once more I was the practical, level headed individual who had held Pendleton's churlish attitude slightly in contempt. I marveled at the delusion that had brought me thousands of miles to the suburbs of Gaur, yet I was bound to take advantage of the opportunity and investigate the ruins. Then I would return to Constantinople, for India did not interest me at that time.

Perhaps we were a couple of miles distant from any habitable portion of the city, for here the ruins of ancient edifices were surrounded by a thick jungle, and my guide, a low caste Hindu of gigantic stature, told me that the jungle was infested with man-eating tigers.

My men were well armed, and as we had made camp in the crumbling upper story of what had once been a beautiful tiled temple we felt secure from marauding beasts.

Before the swift dusk fell and while my men were preparing the evening meal I picked my way down the broken ramp that led from the second story and wandered curiously among the ruins.

There was little to be learned there, for most of the traces of that once beautiful medieval city were either overgrown with vines and shrubs or else lay at this hour in deep shadow, rounding a high wall, I found myself in a small temple.

A tall Brahman priest bent above a stone altar, and at the sound of my footsteps he turned and without evincing surprise at my intrusion calmly advanced and slid into place a slab of stone that served as a door, thus cutting off my retreat.

"Open that door, please," I commanded sharply.

I had spoken in English, and to my surprise he answered in the same tongue, and his voice was vaguely familiar.

"It is too late. I have sent for you, and you have come. Do you not recognize me, Brayton?" He lighted a resinous torch and, sticking it in the wall, held his face in its light.

I looked and stared and stared again, incredulous at first and then convinced that it was Bob Pendleton himself. His skin was burned to the color of mahogany; his hair was concealed under a folded white cloth; his eyebrows were shaven, and his black orbs rolled fiercely in their deep sockets. Handsome he was, as he ever had been, but wretchedly worn and emaciated and so changed from the handsome, buoyant fellow I had known that I might not have recognized him save for the deep bell notes of his voice. His fierce unkindness as expressed by the malignant glitter of his eyes brought forcibly to my mind our strained relations.

"Bob Pendleton! My God, man, what are you doing here?" I gasped at last.

"Waiting for you, Brayton," he said, with an odd laugh.

"Waiting for me?" I repeated stupidly. "Why, that is why I came, of course. You needed me."

"Wanted you—I don't need you," he sneered. "But I called you, didn't I—across five seas and the empire of India?"

"By some superhuman power you did summon me. I am here. If you do not need me I will go. Bob, do you still hold that grudge against me? It was a fair fight and—"

He held up a long, thin hand. "Be still," he said harshly. "I do hold the grudge. I have nurtured it these years past, and now my turn has come. She did not come with you, Brayton? Not Strange. I sent her a most appealing call, and time was when she was not entirely indifferent to me."

Glowing down at me from his tall height, he smiled cynically and turned to the altar, which held nothing save a small square box of some rare wood. I suspected he was insane, and yet there was a certain deadly purpose about everything he did and said that impressed me with a degree of fear that he might not be mad.

The silence of the little shrine buried deep in the heart of this ancient ruined city, the roar of a tiger from the jungle outside, the very thought of my utter isolation from all mankind, my only companion this half mad enemy.

"Who's that?" inquired John's wife. "It's John," responded the friend and hung up the receiver.—New York Press.

What We Heard.

John is his name, and he lives in Newburg. Further personal details are not necessary. Now, John has a wife who is not as charitable as she might be, and she has a woman friend who has domestic troubles of her own and therefore can and does sympathize with John's wife. Just what time it was when John came in the other morning deponent knoweth not, but certainly it was no sort of time for a married man to be getting home, and his wife told him so, though he knew it perfectly well without being told.

Next morning after John had gone to his office his wife called up the other woman on the telephone and told about John. The other woman was all sympathy, and what the two had to say about the kind of husband John was was more than plenty. In the thick of it a friend of John's got in the wire—not intentionally, of course, for he thought John was a model, but he got there, and it sounded good enough to him to stay and listen. But not for long. Presently he coughed, and there was a sudden silence.

"Who's that?" inquired John's wife. "It's John," responded the friend and hung up the receiver.—New York Press.

The Waste of the Wind.

Every one who wants a cheap motive force has tried to harness the wind. Every child has made a paper propeller or a windmill. But can it be said that the possible uses of the wind have been as ardently investigated as such recently discovered forces as steam and electricity and gases? Is it not conceivable that the practical uses of the wind are underestimated just because they are so familiar?

We cannot help thinking that the wind will be more variously employed some day in the same way that probably the problem of laying under contribution the great physical fact of the tides will be solved. One would think that the wind could be used for electric lighting, yet there is no practical apparatus for the purpose. True, the wind is variable and occasionally absent, but as electricity can be stored one might suppose that this was the very case in which variability did not particularly matter.—Indianapolis News.

WASHING FURNITURE.

Easy to Restore Tarnished Pieces to Original Freshness.

"Very few people know that furniture ought to be washed," said a salesman in the furniture section of a large department store. "Yet," he continued, "it is the best thing one can do to keep furniture looking as well as it should. One should take a bucket of tepid rain water and make a suds with a good pure soap. Then with a soft piece of cheesecloth all the woodwork should be washed. It is astonishing how much dirt will come off. A second piece of cheesecloth should be wrung dry out of hot water. On this should be poured a tablespoonful of first class furniture polish. The heat will spread the polish through the cloth. Next the furniture should be gone over with the second cloth. There will be no need of putting on more polish, for that much will do all one needs. Too many persons make the mistake of using too much polish and leaving it thick on the furniture, where it looks dauby and where it gathers more dirt."

There is furniture in homes today that is cast off because of its appearance when it might be brought back to its original freshness by this simple process of washing. Many persons do not know that a fine bit of mahogany is improved by careful washing, and hundreds of pianos have never been more than dusted in years. A square of cheesecloth for the washing and another for the polishing will do the work, and the result will well repay the effort.—Indianapolis News.

HOT DRINKS.

If Taken Above 130 Degrees They Injure the Stomach.

Many people without realizing it are in the habit of drinking tea at much too high a temperature. Sir Henry Thompson points out in his book on "Diet in Relation to Age and Activity."

"Few persons are aware that they habitually swallow hot liquids, tea especially, at a temperature which, if applied to the hands or feet, would inflict painful scalds. Most tea drinkers take it about 140 to 145 degrees F., which the mouth bears very well if slowly slipped, while the cup itself is too hot to be held by any hand."

"But the habit of swallowing such tea is injurious to the stomach, and it ought not to be taken above 130 degrees or so. Again, water at 120 degrees, which feels a little more than lukewarm in the mouth, causes severe pain if the hand is dipped in it and cannot be endured."

He has, however, some good words to say for the early morning tea.

"This morning tea in any case should be taken at least an hour and a half before the first meal of the day. For many years I have been accustomed to write for an hour every morning in bed after tea, as I am doing at this moment, and at no time do I find the brain clearer for work while the appetite for solid food is excellent when the hour for breakfast arrives."

Trudging For the Wash.

The Portuguese country people as a usual thing have great physical endurance, doubtless as a result of the "survival of the fittest" for many generations. The laundry workers are an example of this. People come in from long distances to get soiled clothes of city customers. The clothes will be placed in big tubs on the family donkey, and the peasants will start back late in the afternoon. Some of them will travel all night and it will be sunrise before they reach their homes, nearly miles from Lisbon or Oporto. A day or two later they are trudging back to deliver the clothes now spotlessly clean, and to get an order from the same patron. Many a countryman and his wife take a jaunt of fifteen miles or more, which makes one think that there might be many who could rival the feats of Weston and O'Leary as walkers if they tried.—Christian Herald.

Oddest of Queer Fishes.

A queer fish that does not swim is the "sargasso fish," known to sailors as the "frogsfish." It lives in that vast mass of floating guifweed called the Sargasso sea, in mid Atlantic.

Its pectoral fins are so modified and developed as to resemble arms, and it uses them for clinging to the weed. Very gaudily colored, it changes its hues to match the aquatic vegetation by which it is surrounded, and when the latter decays and turns brown it assumes a corresponding shade.

The fish lays its eggs in a jelly-like mass, which, absorbing a great quantity of water, becomes three times as big as the mother fish herself, assuming the form of a narrow raft three or four feet long and two to four inches wide.—New York Sun.

Parnell.

I never saw a braver man than Parnell. The story of his downfall is one of the most pathetic in history. There is a rumor that Captain O'Shea said to Gambetta: "What are we going to do with Parnell? He is getting to be a great danger to the country." And Gambetta replied, "Set a woman on his track." And the woman, instead of betraying him, fell in love with this patriot, and that was his undoing.—Recollections of Mrs. T. P. O'Connor.

To Discourage Him.

"George," said her husband's wife, "I don't believe you have smoked one of those cigars I gave you on your birthday."

"That's right, my dear," replied his wife's husband. "I'm going to keep them until our Willie wants to learn to smoke."—Chicago News.

"No. She caught him telling the truth the other day, and now she can't dope him out at all."—Toledo Blade.

TIMELY HINTS FOR FARMERS

Put the Manure on the Field.

Professor Ten Eyck of the Kansas experiment station says: "In my judgment it is best to haul the manure direct from the stable to the field where this can be economically done. The manure is not improved especially by being left in the shed, but if it is not possible to haul it to the field and spread it at once as soon as it is made then it is much preferable to have the manure stored in the shed rather than leave it exposed to the weather in an open yard. A good method of feeding cattle and making manure is to feed under sheds. The tramping of the manure by the cattle will pack it and cause it to hold moisture so that it will keep in good condition for a long time with little loss."

Brood Mares in Winter.

Brood mares during the winter previous to foaling, if not worked daily, should be kept in an open yard sheltered from storms. Daily exercise is very important to them during this period.

Mares that are not in the harness during the winter should have free access to a rack filled with fresh straw or hay, with a few ears of corn daily. This is an economical as well as a safe way to feed mares during the winter.

Ashes For Fruit Trees.

Save all the wood ashes and use around fruit trees as a fertilizer. Wood ashes are especially good for peach trees, and they will benefit all fruit trees and vines. In using them as a fertilizer do not place any against the trunk of the tree, since the strong alkali will spoil the bark. Scatter them thinly on the soil over a circle as big as the top of the tree. The feeding roots run out farther than the longest branches of the tree.

Mixed Sheep Poor Investment.

Mutton sheep should never be of mixed breeds on one farm. Get one good mutton breed and stick to it and develop it to the highest notch possible. A lot of mixed lambs never bring the highest price on the market. It is those of one breed, uniform in size, shape and condition, that get the big money.

FEEDING ANIMAL MATTER TO HENS.

Value of Green Bone as a Producer of Winter Eggs.

The oldest works on the subject of poultry recommend feeding animal matter in some form, but it is only in recent years that feeding green bone has become popular.

Up until about 1889 winter egg production was not much of a feature, great as the demand was, for the reason that there seemed no possible way of getting the hens down to solid work. There was an improvement, however, when better houses, better feeding and better care were employed, but still the supply was meager considering the output at the present day.

According to an analysis by Professor James E. Rice, the nutritive value of green bone is 1.53, which is greater than any other form of meat—meat scraps, dried blood, dried fish or animal meal.

Hens are worm and insect hunters, and where they do not have range must be supplied a substitute in some form. Particularly in summer the handiest meat food is meat scrap and meat meal, many brands of which are on the market. Green bone is better for fall, winter and early spring use. It is safe to feed in an egg ration one-tenth to one-fifth by weight of meat in the total ration, the quantity varying with the richness of the meat and other foods used. It is best to mix the meat in the meal feed. In the case of green cut bone it is more satisfactory to feed in troughs, allowing a pound of green bone for every sixteen fowls, or an ounce per head.

Mistakes have been made in feeding green bone in giving too liberal a quantity. An excess will produce aggravated diarrhea and worms, and a too liberal supply of meat scrap is apt to cause an overfat condition of the fowls.

Farm Wisdom.

The April hatched pullets should now be laying. They certainly are if they have been given the proper feed and care.

If you have any little potatoes the hens can make good use of them. Boil them up soft and feed a ration now and then.

Meat scraps put up especially for the hens may be had in almost any market, and it is a very necessary egg producing feed at this time. Crushed oyster shells are needed also.

An essential to the hen's comfort in cold weather is a floor where no drafts are felt.—Farm Journal.

Cold Weather Rations For Sheep.

Winter rations for mutton sheep should consist of fine, well cured hay, about four pounds of ensilage or roots with a grain ration approximating the following: Two parts of each of wheat, bran, oats and corn and one part of oatmeal, divided into feeds daily.

Poe's Short Stories.

There are in the best of Poe's brief tales a constructive skill, a command of design and a gift of decoration rare in any literature and almost unknown in English, which is ever unduly negligent of form. And no one need wonder that Poe's short stories wander. I swiftly out of our languages into French and Italian and Spanish, into German and Scandinavian and Bohemian, into strange tongues where no other American author, except Fenimore Cooper, had ever before penetrated. His weird psychologic studies have influenced later writers as unlike as Maupassant and Richepin, Fitz James O'Brien, Robert Louis Stevenson and Rudyard Kipling. His tales of a mystery solved at last by observation and deduction have been imitated by Dumas and Sardou, by Gaboriau and Boisgobey, by Wilkie Collins and Conan Doyle. And Sherlock Holmes, the only fictitious character to win international recognition in the final years of the nineteenth century, is the reincarnation of a figure first projected by Poe.—Brander Matthews in Century.

Making a Cake With the Bible.

The following unique recipe for Scripture cake is copied from an old English cookbook. For the ingredients and directions for making the cake you must refer to the Bible, in the chapters and verses given here with. It may be added that by carefully following the directions you will be able to make a most delicious cake—the very best thing for a Sunday afternoon tea!

Four and a half cups of 1 Kings iv, 22; half pound Judges v, 25; two cups Jeremiah vi, 20; two cups Nahum iii, 12; two cups 1 Samuel xxx, 12; two cups Numbers xvii, 8; two teaspoonsfuls 1 Samuel xiv, 25; to taste, 11 Chronicles ix, 9; six Jeremiah xvii, 11; one and a half cups Judges iv, 19; two teaspoonsfuls Amos iv, 5; one pinch Leviticus ii, 13; directions, Proverbs xxiii, 14; bake one and a half to two hours. Baking powder may be used instead of yeast or leaven, as it is termed in the Bible.

The Handkerchief Came From Italy.

A writer in a London review points out that the handkerchief does not come to us from China, as has been generally believed, but from Italy. It is only 300 years ago that the handkerchief of a Venetian lady was considered a great curiosity. The handkerchief crossed the Alps and was received with great favor at the court of France. Handkerchiefs were then made of cambrie or lawn and bordered with Venetian or Alencon lace. Under Henry III of France the sachet was introduced. The handkerchief was taken into Germany a little later and was known as the "fazefelstink," after its Italian name. Only persons of quality used it, and an edict in 1595 was published at Dresden interdicting the use of the handkerchief among the trading classes.—London Globe.

Careful of His Gun.

In one of the small mountain towns of Kentucky lived Dan, a halfwit, with whom the boys often went hunting. On one of these trips Dan and the young man with him were between two hills when a rabbit jumped up in front of them and ran up the hill to Dan's right. The other fellow, being on Dan's left, did not wish to take the chance of shooting at the rabbit for fear of an accident, so he said, "There he goes, Dan! Shoot him, shoot him!" But Dan simply stood still and watched the rabbit disappear over the hill, and his partner wanted to know why he didn't shoot. After a moment's silence he answered, talking through his nose: "Did you take me for a fool? Do you think I was going to strain my gun shooting uphill?"—Chicago Tribune.

Spoiled the Solemnity.

Joseph H. Choate when ambassador to the court of St. James and Mark Twain were together in St. George's Chapel, London, one hot day, both seemingly sobered by the solemnity of the place.

"What an awful thing it is!" Twain began in a whisper.

Mr. Choate leaned closer to catch some ponderously sad expression from the humorist.

"What an awful thing it is," Twain repeated, "to be shut up in a place where one cannot smoke."

Beyond the Styx.

"I believe you were called the father of your country," remarked the shade of Bonaparte. "Did you like the title?"

"I did," answered the shade of Washington, "but between you and me I'd hate to be even a stepfather to some of the cities therein today."—Exchange.

An Untamed Rascal.

"That's right. I believe he'd even cheat at checkers!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Sailor—Just at that moment my father received a bullet that cut off both his arms and legs and threw him into the sea. Fortunately he knew how to swim.—Paris Rire.

His Punishment.

"What makes you so late?"

"I had words with the teacher."

"Indeed?"

"Yes, I couldn't spell them!"—Lipincott's.

Fencing.

NATURE'S PAINT BRUSH.

Colors, Shades and Tints That Cannot Be Reproduced by Man.

Nature paints in the most striking colors and shades and tints with a delicacy never achieved by the brush in the hands of the artist. The highest ambition of the manufacturer of paints is to produce colors which look like nature's. She has never succeeded. Grass has a green of its own. So has the leaf and so has the distant ocean. None of these has ever been reproduced and put in cans with a price label on them.

Winter apples now repose on the shelves of the paint chemists. Honor awaits the man who can combine colors to produce the tints of red of the Baldwin and Northern Spy. They come pretty near it, that is all. The same is true of the colors with which October first touches the maple leaf. If all the paint grinding works in the world were multiplied ten thousand times they couldn't turn out pigment enough in a year to do what nature does in a change from season to season.

Nature's brush is busy everywhere all the time. In the life of a leaf it applies the brush day by day, following with its tints from budding time until it flutters from the branch. It touches the valleys and the hills, the growing grains, the flowering plants. Never is it idle.—New York World.

Legend of Holyrood Palace.

Holyrood palace, Edinburgh, Scotland, once a British royal residence, is the subject of a strange legend. Robert Louis Stevenson alludes to it in his little book on Edinburgh. "There is a silly story," he writes, "of a subterranean passage between the castle of Holyrood and a bold highland piper who volunteered to explore its windings. He made his entrance by the upper end, playing a strathspey. The curious spied it after him down the street, following his descent by the sound of the chanter from below, until all of a sudden, about the level of St Giles', the music came abruptly to an end and the people in the street stood at fault with hands uplifted. Whether he was choked with gases or perished in a quag or was removed bodily by the evil one remains a point of doubt, but the piper has never again been seen or heard of from that day to this."

National shortsightedness.

"In this country," said the sociologist, "everything possible is done to discourage people from marrying."

"How so?" inquired one of the listeners.

"You have to buy the marriage license, fee the preacher, the boys give you what they call a 'shivarée,' your friends throw old shoes at you, the newspapers print caricatures of you, life insurance agents hound you, you bump right up against the cost of living, and if you and you've made a mistake you have to go to no end of trouble to get a divorce!"—Chicago Tribune.

His Strong Point.

"This is a pretty bad report card," said the father of the young hopeful as he looked over the teacher's figures. "You seem to be poor in pretty much everything."

"That's 'cause teacher only puts down the studies I ain't good in. I ought to have 'excellent' in one thing."

"And what's that?" hopefully inquired the father.

"Eightin' I can lick any boy in the class!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Shop.

"Take your arm away, sir!" sharply exclaimed the indignant maiden.

"So," said the young editor unsmilingly, "an unexpected accident, we're gret to say, prevents our going to dress."—Chicago Tribune.

Another Term for Lodge.

The long contest for the seat of senior Senator from Massachusetts was settled on Wednesday, when Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge received a majority vote of the joint convention to succeed himself for another term. We say long contest advisedly; for although the direct political features have occurred within recent dates, plans to secure the defeat of Senator Lodge were laid long, long ago and have been pursued with relentless vigor and at entire disregard of expense. The things we allude to are many of them of general knowledge, but there were others of a secret nature that were all the more effective because carried on under the surface. To have defeated this combination, is a greater personal victory for Senator Lodge than has been achieved by him in any previous political campaign in his own behalf or the party in which he is so conspicuously a leader.

The Republicans who have stood loyally for the best interests of the Commonwealth in securing the return of Senator Lodge to the place he has filled with signal ability, are deserving the thanks of the entire country, and when the fomentors of this strife have dropped back into the small place where they belong,—as drop they will,—many of those who have been swerved from duty by the specious arguments of disgruntled men temporarily lifted into places of prominence they have had the ability to sustain, will also be glad the plans to defeat Senator Lodge miscarried and that Massachusetts still commands the service of a man his contemporaries are glad to acknowledge as one well fitted to lead in the highest councils of the nation.

No Lexington Carnival this week? The management has to have three days, at least, to announce it. One of the chief spectacular features of the carnival is to be a cave in which the supper is to be served and for which there are already four hundred reservations of seats. We are told that the spectacle in the cave will be wonderfully beautiful, and we are sure this will be so, as we are informed that Mr. J. F. Russell has had the decorations in charge and his skill and artistic taste are quite exceptional. It is hoped that we'll get snow before this week is over in sufficient quantity to be able to announce at the earliest possible date that the carnival will be on Saturday, Jan. 28th. Hosts of people have signified their intention of coming out from Boston and the surrounding suburbs and it would seem that the most serious difficulty to be encountered will be to handle the crowds.

John Quincy Adams died at his home in New York, Jan. 14. He was 63 years old. Mr. Adams was a charter member of the Sons of the American Revolution, and one of the founders of the American Flag House and Betsy Ross Memorial Association. He was a cousin of the senior editor of this paper, Chas. S. Parker, and out of a family of eight children their is but one remaining sister, Flora Adams Darling, founder general of the Daughter of the Revolution, a sister of Mr. Adams, died not quite a year ago. The family prided itself on its revolutionary ancestry.

Next Wednesday evening the pupils of Willard Flint, the soloist and vocal teacher, known to quite a number of our readers for his rare musical talents, gives a song recital in Student Hall, Boston, at eight o'clock. Friends from here are to participate in the recital.

Prof. Charles E. Fay, the distinguished lecturer and mountain climber, gave a lecture open to the public in Goddard Chapel, at Tufts College, on Thursday evening of this week, which was of rare excellence and was attended by some of our readers. His subject was, "The Majesty of the Mountains."

Sunset Hour at Spy Pond.

By J. FRANN WALDO.

O, sweet expanse of liquid, full of light! Reflecting sky, and all inclosed bright! Repeating her again the evening glow; Upon its surface, while the sun sets low; Inverting lights and shadows of the land, Whose evanescent forms, mingling, instil Into the mind, like radiant gold, or gems; Or sparkling jewels, and rich diamonds! Of oriental splendor, brought from Ind., That glistered on its bosom, stirred by wind; M- zephyr, bearing fragrance from the shore; Or, perfect calm, repeating objects, o' and o'er.

I stood upon thy western brink at eve, Transfixed with splendors that I could not leave.

As there, beneath o'erhanging trees, I scanned This wondrous beauty, nature then had planned:

Earth, air and water there commingling

Like the enchantments told in ancient lore;

Or, to the fabulous songs the Niads sing;

Or, from the rocks, their mirrored forms adored.

Translucent atmosphere's vibrating waves, Blending all objects into color sweet;

The golden cloud above, seemingly laws

Its form where rush and waters meet,

Near to the willowy bank, beneath the street

Where lordly mansions grace the "pleasant" way;

Suburban scenes,—we might say,—

Of business-sense, who love a fine retreat

Where rest and happiness are sure to meet.

Enhanced to be near by a Poet's home,

Whose inspired muse has drunk from this great store;

Enough to fill a column, or a tome,

Gazing upon the islet, and the shore;

Leaving his ripened age, calm and serene,

Like this resplendent evening of our scene;

A vesper anthem, from great nature's choir;

Played by ethereal hands, man, woman,

A melody of soft, harmonious chords;

A breathing, pulsing prayer, that soul absorbs,

Raising his thoughts above mere worldly things,

Unto the Power, that every blessing brings.

Now, as the grasp of winter, closes firm Upon the waters of this graceful pond,

Whose glary surface, makes the boys respond,

And with their skates enjoy the wintry term,

Here, at the evening hour, mirrored, I saw

Wood, house and hills, reflected, by the law

Which nature can repeat, at seasons roll,

Each having pleasures to itself, a whole

Year blest with ever changing, wondrous views

That charm the eye, both heart and soul infuse.

Arlington, Mass.

Dec. 16th, 1910.

Dr. Francis A. Harris, for many years medical examiner for Suffolk County, who has been in a serious condition at his home in Winthrop for several weeks, had a paralytic stroke on Sunday and died two days later. The doctor had been in failing health for several years. Dr. Harris has been considered an authority on medico-legal practice and he testified in many famous cases in the Massachusetts courts. He was prominent in the trial of Charles L. Tucker, sent to the electric chair. Dr. Harris was born in Ashland in 1845 and was graduated from Harvard in 1866. He was a son of Dr. Jonas C. Harris of Arlington, deceased many years ago, but whose widow still resides on Academy street, Arlington.

Thrift in the High School.

Mr. Harry W. Kimball, Field Secretary of the Massachusetts Savings Insurance League, spoke in Arlington High school, Friday forenoon, Jan. 13, upon the subject of "Thrift, as Illustrated by Savings Bank Life Insurance." By an Act of the Legislature last year, "Thrift" is one of the subjects permitted to be taught in the schools of the Commonwealth. Mr. Kimball said in part:—

"There is an old-fashioned virtue which our forefathers had, but which is too often neglected in this age, where there are so many temptations to spend money. Recently a magazine made an investigation of 50,000 well-to-do American families, and found that when the heads of the families died, less than 2,000 were possessed of sufficient means to settle, without debt, the estate. There are more temptations now for the boys and girls to spend money than there used to be. Moving picture shows, amusement parks, trolley lines and foot ball games, all demand money. A boy in the High school is worth something. One of the best things that any father or mother can do is to take out a life insurance policy upon the life of their boys and girls, that if by any chance these children should die they may have some protection for expenses and old age. If the boy lives and keeps up his insurance policy, it means that he gets the protection for his own family when that day comes, at very low cost."

In Savings Bank Life Insurance, Massachusetts has provided the best form of insurance in the world. Since insurance is a real necessity of life, it should be furnished to the people at actual cost and at the least possible expense. This is what Savings Bank Life Insurance does. The general expenses are paid by the state; the insuring banks are not allowed to spend any money for soliciting business and all the profits go back to the policy holders. Therefore, Savings Bank Life Insurance is the cheapest, safest and soundest insurance any one can have. It is expected that in the near future there will be agencies for Savings Bank Life Insurance in our High schools, so that an easy opportunity will be afforded for all pupils to take out policies.

While many thought that nothing would result from the passage of the law, the actual fact is that these banks, have, in two years, written over a million and a half of insurance and more than $1,400,000 is in force at the present time. A dividend of $8 per cent was declared at the end of the first year, and through the establishment of agencies among large employers of labor, steady progress month by month is being made."

Real Boston.

Boston is a greatly misunderstood city. Much more misunderstood is the "Real Boston," a community composed of forty cities and towns lying within a ten-mile radius of the State House and forming what is commonly termed the Metropolitan District. Boston's history and her educational pre-eminence are known over the entire world, but few people realize the tremendous commercial and industrial resources of the forty cities and towns comprising the Metropolitan District of Boston. Immediately adjacent are such cities as Cambridge, the forty-sixth largest city in the country, Lynn, the fifty-sixth, Somerville, Malden and Newton.

Now these cities and Boston, with thirty-three other cities and towns, comprise a compact community of 1,500,000 people. Boston is 10th in the fifth largest city in the country, whereas "Real Boston" is fourth, ranking close to Philadelphia.

The experience of many members of the Boston Chamber of Commerce who have been working to build up Boston has proved beyond doubt that the business men of the world and of the United States do not realize by one-half the true commercial, industrial and financial importance of Boston and her surrounding suburbs. Several committees of the Boston Chamber of Commerce have been seriously embarrassed in the carrying forward of their work by this fact. These places already co-operate in the support of the metropolitan water and sewer system of the country. The federation idea is the basal principle.

EAST LEXINGTON LOCALS.

Mr. E. C. Clark is quite ill at his home on Massachusetts Avenue.

It was deemed wise, by those in charge, to omit the meeting of the Young People's Guild on last Sunday evening.

The social dance will be given this Friday evening, in Village Hall, under the management of Colonial orchestra. A large party is expected including "out-of-towners."

Baked beans, salad, coffee, rolls, all for fifteen cents, and ice cream and cake served extra, will be the menu at the supper. The Alliance is preparing for on Jan. 26th. The community is invited to attend.

There is to be a supper in the vestry of Follen church on the evening of January 26th. All donations will be very gratefully received. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance to join in and have a very jolly time.

"Slavery, Servitude and Wages," will be the subject of Rev. G. Willis Cooke's lecture, Sunday afternoon, at three o'clock, in his course on "Constructive Socialism." The addresses are given in Pierce Building, room 301, Copley Sq., Boston, and are cordially invited.

Mr. Geo. Carlton Worthen, of Maple street, has been confined to the house for ten days or more, owing to a very severe cold, protracted by his recent change of climate. Mr. Worthen recently returned from the far west. His friends will be glad to hear that he is much better.

Rev. Mr. Quincy will address the ladies of Follen Alliance at their meeting in the vestry of the church, on Thursday afternoon next, Jan. 26, at the usual hour of meeting. The ladies are happy to learn that Mrs. Quiat has signified her intention to become a member of the Guild.

We are glad to learn that Miss Brigham is somewhat better. As she has sat at her window her cheery smile has greeted friends as they have passed her home and it has been a welcome sight. We are doing the best we can with her column since she is prohibited conducting it, but we all miss her pen.

The people of our village were very sorry to learn, on Sunday morning, that Rev. Mr. Quincy was suffering with a bad attack of bronchitis. The morning service, in consequence, had to be omitted. No doubt this was a disappointment to many, but trust he will soon recover. We feel that he is too valuable a man to be separated from us for any length of time.

It is the earnest wish of Adams Hose & Chemical Company that all attending the Bingville dance, given by them Friday evening, January 27th, will come in costume. Grand march at eight o'clock sharp. Prizes are to be awarded to the lady and gent donning the most typical and ridiculous costume. All are invited to come and join in the merriment and dance to the music of Haystack's orchestra, E. L. Hornblower, leader.

Thursday evening of last week, in Village Hall, a very successful party was given under the auspices of the Bethel Associates, made up of members of Bethel Longe, I. O. O. F., of Arlington. The affair was termed a kitchen party and furnished what proved a unique and unusually popular novelty in the way of a dance. Most of the women came in kitchen attire, and very becoming it proved, showing that it really made little difference what the good-lookers wore for they were bound to look pretty and womanly. In one corner of the hall a small kitchen had been set up in a very realistic way, and then a significant touch was given the hall by using kitchen utensils to decorate. The attendance was very large, representing not only this village and town, but most of the surrounding towns and cities. It was a very jolly party and all entered into the spirit of the occasion with more than usual vivacity. The committee having the evening in charge was composed of Chas. W. Spaulding, Lucius A. Austin, Geo. L. Pierce, Wm. A. Prince, David Buttrick, Wm. Peppard, Oman Bennett. Those participating in the party were:—

Messrs. and Mesdames B. Earle, C. W. Spaulding, H. Hover, F. Goodwillie, J. Moakley, H. Brown, L. A. Austin, C. Hadley, H. McNutt, W. Peppard, F. Earle, J. Morse, J. Phillips, E. Tyler, O. Mrs. Sarah Bowman Van Ness of this village writes thus interesting of descendants of an old Lexington family:—

"Hon. C. C. Bowman is this winter sent to Washington to represent Pennsylvania, and the Wilkesbarre paper, even now, mention him as the future Governor of Pennsylvania. Mr. Bowman (a cousin of mine) occupied my home in East Lexington the summer I spent in Europe and as he and his family met many of the Lexington people I thought it would be of interest to the Lexington friends to know of his election." Mrs. Bowman also enclosed a clipping from a Pennsylvania paper relating to Major Gen. Bowman "who is from the same English ancestry, but his branch became Quakers and went with William Penn to Pa. His grandfather, Roger Bowman, was intimate enough with General Washington to call him "George" and when the seat of Government was moved from Philadelphia to Washington, Gen. Washington gave his private office furniture of solid mahogany to his friend, Roger Bowman, and Gen. Bowman had in his dining room in Menon, Pa., Gen. Charles Bowman Dougherty who succeeds Gen. Gen. Isaac Bowman, son of Joseph Bowman, of Lexington, who was the last military officer in Lexington commissioned by the king. Gen. Isaac Bowman was general of the Pennsylvania troops at close of the Revolution; his father, Ebenezer Bowman, was the State Attorney; Samuel Bowman, his brother, was Episcopal Bishop of Pennsylvania and their brother Col. Joseph Bowman of New Braintree, was senator in Massachusetts many years; also, his grandson, Hon. George Taft, of Worcester, has been Senator many years. So you see Bowman blood has been respected and honored ever since our cavalier ancestor landed in Watertown. Bond, in his history of Watertown, page 1082, says a portion of the town was named for Mr. Bowman "to show the esteem in which he was held," but not being willing to give up his membership in the church of England he was never elected to office, but when the king appointed his first royal magistrates in Massachusetts, his son, Francis Bowman, was appointed royal magistrate from 1720 to his death in 1744, and was then succeeded as royal magistrate by his son Isaac, 1744 to 1753. When the war ended, but while representing the king personally, the people of Lexington respected him so highly that they made him chairman of their committee to protest against the king's taxation, as is shown by Hudson's history and Capt. Thaddeus Bowman was made chairman of Committee of Correspondence."

President Oscar Needham was what the boys term, "up against it," on Monday evening, when he was disappointed in all directions in trying to secure a speaker for the monthly meeting of the Men's Club, of Follen church. Rev. Mr. Quincy was announced to speak on a novel topic, but a severe cold prevented his presence and this was the plea on all sides when others were applied to. However, all present in Follen church vestry on that evening had a delicious turkey supper prepared by the committee chair-maned by Frank Buttrick.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS LOCALS.

Married Twenty-five Years.

The attractive residence of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Livingstone, 29 Cliff street, never looked more inviting than on Saturday evening of last week, Jan. 14th, when the couple received some two hundred and fifty guests in observance of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. The spacious rooms and large reception hall were admirably adapted to the occasion so happily celebrated and looked most inviting with the artistic decorations arranged by W. W. Rawson & Co. The bay window in the parlor, where the couple stood, was converted into a green bower by the use of asparagus vines and palms, pink carnations being used to give the color scheme of green and pink. An orchestra of three pieces was seated in the alcove leading out of the dining room and was screened in with palms and ferns. The fire place in the room was banked with green, and in fact the whole house was given a festive appearance with the green and its beautiful cut flowers in great profusion which had been given to the couple by business friends of Mr. Livingstone.

Mr. and Mrs. Livingstone received from 8 to 10 o'clock and was assisted by the former's mother, Mrs. Agnes Livingstone, of East Boston. Madam Livingstone was in black silk. The hostess wore a beautiful imported white lace gown over pale yellow satin, and carried a bouquet of twenty-five pale pink roses. The tour older children of the couple acted as ushers. They are Alexander, Jr., Clara, Stanley and Katherine. Miss Livingstone was in pale pink satin, Miss Katherine in an embroidered batiste, Agnes, the youngest of the family, had charge of the guest book, assisted by Mrs. Alexander Livingstone, the wife of the oldest son of the family. The former was in a white lace dress, while the latter wore her wedding gown of white muslin.

Caterer Hardy served a spread of ices and cream from a beautifully decorated table. The center piece was an immense mound of red carnations and white narcissus. Colored waiters served the guests who were present from nearly all the surrounding cities and towns, besides many from the Unitarian parish at Arlington center, where the family attend church.

There was a large and choice display of gifts, including silver, which naturally predominated, besides cut glass and pictures. The Sunshine Club, of which Mrs. Livingstone is a member, gave a silver picture plate on a stand and a club of ladies of which Mrs. Livingstone has been a member since childhood remunerated the occasion with four silver candle sticks.

Mr. and Mrs. Livingstone were married in Allston by Rev. S. H. Winkley, who is still living, but an account of his advanced age was unable to be present that evening. Almost all the time since they were married they have lived at Arlington Heights. Mr. Livingstone is in the wool business in Boston, was born in Scotland 47 years ago and has been in this country since he was a child. He attended the Adams school in East Boston, and Mrs. Livingstone, born Clara Givier, was a classmate. Their old schoolmaster, Mr. Metcalf, is still living and sent them a remembrance, but owing to an injury was unable to attend. Both Mr. and Mrs. Livingstone were brought up in East Boston. Mr. Livingstone is a member of the A. F. and A. M. of the Knights Templars, and at one time was lieutenant in the old Mayback rifles. The couple have hosts of friends here at the Heights, who were present to extend their congratulations on the happy event.

The Sunshine club met Wednesday evening, in N. Y., since the week before Christmas, returned to the Heights on Tuesday of this week. She had had one round of pleasure, having been entertained by different relatives where the young people in the family have made her visit most enjoyable.

—Mr. Claude Palmer is entertaining his sister, Miss Palmer, of Syracuse, N. Y., at his home on Wollaston avenue.

—The Ladies' Aid, of the Methodist church, hold a ford sale this Saturday afternoon in the vestry of the church.

—United Helpers, connected with the Baptist church, will give a birthday social next week in the church vestry.

—The Ladies' Aid, of the Methodist Episcopal church, met Wednesday evening, with Mrs. Joseph L. Dow, of Claremont avenue.

—The T. D. Dupees will remain in their Park avenue home this winter, instead of going in Boston to board, as has been their custom for several years.

—Miss Mildred Partridge was appointed treasurer and pianist of the Primary department of Park Avenue Sunday school at the noon session last week.

—Mr. Leander D. Bradley was called to Vineyard Haven on Tuesday of this week on account of the death of an aunt, whose funeral occurred on the following day.

—The Friday Social club held an important meeting this afternoon with Mrs. Clarence Gale. The social of the club occurs next Tuesday evening, in Park Avenue church.

—The ladies of the Friday Social Club interested in the bazaar to be given some time in May, met this week for a sewing bee at the home of Mrs. F. W. Garrett, on Tanager street.

—The choir of the Methodist church met on Wednesday evening, with Mrs. Mooney, of Oakland avenue. After the rehearsal the remainder of the evening was spent in sociability.

—We are sorry to learn of the illness of Mr. Ellsworth Nichols, at his home on Wollaston avenue. Since Mr. Nichols' residence at the Heights, he has been an earnest worker in Park avenue church.

—The Crescent Zouaves are planning for an entertainment and dance to be given in Town Hall, February 3rd. Mr. W. O. Partridge, Jr., is coaching some of the acts that will be given by local talent.

—James Colprit took first, second and third prize for the best and darkest brown eggs at the Boston Poultry Association Show held last week at Mechanics building. He also took third on Langshorn pullets.

—Messrs. Schuetzner, Parsons and Bunting give their fourth dancing party next Saturday evening, Jan. 26th, in Crescent hall. Messrs. T. H. Quimby and Mrs. I. T. Hunt will be the matrons. These parties have proved quite the society event of each month.

—Mrs. McNally, who is to be the soloist at the Singers' Club concert on Feb. 6th, is the alto in the quartette at the Hawes' Unitarian church in South Boston, where Mr. George Bunting is the bass and director of music. Mrs. Bunting has had charge of the music at that church for the past twenty-two years.

—The Sunday school of Park avenue Cong'l church held its annual meeting and election of officers on Tuesday evening, in the church vestry. There were some sixteen teachers and officers present. The newly elected supt., Herbert Snow, presided. Reports were read from the different departments and the following officers elected: Asst. supt., Claude A. Palmer; Supt. of Primary Dept., Mrs. J. G. Taylor; secretary, George Bacon; treasurer, Miss Ethel Ober; librarian, Mr. Spencer; pianist, Miss Alma Freeman; auditor, Joseph Morrison.

—In our report of the installation of the officers of Post 36, which occurred on the evening of Jan. 12, we failed to note the fact that the retiring Commander, Henry Clark, received from his comrades a handsome gold Past-Commander's badge. Junior Vice-Com. Edw. L. Sterling was the spokesman, and though he spoke in a facetious vein, there was expressed deep sentiment that touched the heart of the recipient. Com. Clark's acceptance was happily worded and strengthened the fraternal tie which binds the comrades of Post 36 so closely.

—Citizens of the town acquainted with the facts are much aroused over the cutting down of a number of the fine young poplar trees which were set out on the border of Spy Pond Athletic Field. The young trees were evidently cut down with a knife, and ten have been spoiled in this manner. The trees were set out with the idea of making a definite line between the park and the adjoining property and also to beautify the park. The person doing the cutting started at the end nearest Arlington Boat Club House, and a number of trees this person cut short off, while others were hacked and the limbs cut and broken off, and the tree ruined.

—At the close of the evening service, last Sunday, at the Methodist Episcopal church, the recently elected officers and teachers of the Sunday school, were installed with an impressive service, by the pastor, Rev. F. D. Taylor. They were as follows:

SELECT CULLINGS

His Wish Came True.

When Edward Douglass White was in the United States senate, nearly two decades ago, the people of Louisiana were anxious that he should resign and become governor of the state. His law partner at the time is declared to have urged such action on the part of Senator White. The latter is reported to have replied:

"No, I intend to remain in Washington. I hope some day to hold the most important position under this government."

"What is that position—the presidency?" he was asked.

"I regard it as more important than the presidency," responded the Louisiana.

"Do you wish to go on the supreme court? Is that what you mean?"

"Yes, but it is more important even than the position of associate justice of that court. I hope some day to be chief justice of the supreme court of the United States. I regard that as the highest position a man may attain."

Senator White's wish has come true.—New York Tribune.

The Poor Hotel Porter.

A man who lives at one of the hotels near Fifth avenue donned a new suit yesterday and mentioned to the clerk that he thought of giving one he was discarding to the head porter.

"I suppose he doesn't get very much of a salary," he observed.

"He gets no salary at all," replied the clerk.

"Then I'll get that suit downstairs at once. Poor chap, he must have a hard struggle."

"He not only gets no salary, but he pays $100 a month for his job and the wages of the several men under him," continued the clerk. "He can afford to do it out of his tips and the express business."

"On second thought," remarked the man with two suits, "I believe it would insult the head porter to offer him a secondhand suit of clothes."—New York Sun.

Submerged by Beavers.

New York state has been engaged in trying to restore the almost extinct beavers and for that purpose has planted some colonies in the Adirondacks and protected them by rigorous laws against their destruction. Now one of these colonies has built its dams so as to almost completely flood a farm, and the farmer can do anything about it except perhaps to sue the state for damages. He cannot destroy the dam or kill the animals, which have deprived him both of his property and his means of livelihood, because of the laws protecting the beaver. He can collect damages, but that doesn't give him back his farm. It raises the question as to which is the more important, the farmer or the beaver, and which ought to have the more protection. At present the beaver is doing well.—Watertown Times.

Hurt His Dignity.

Charles R. Nixon, assistant secretary of the senate, bought a handsome hat and the morning after making the purchase dropped it out of his window, on the third floor of an apartment house which has no elevator.

Not being dressed and having nobody within call, Nixon went to the telephone and called for a messenger boy from a telegraph office. The boy arrived, and Nixon told him to go down and get the hat, which still lay in the street.

"How much is that?" asked Nixon when the messenger returned.

"Anything you choose to give," said the boy sulkily, "but I want you to understand I'm a messenger boy! I ain't no retriever!"—Washington Star.

Guard Against Pneumonia.

Dr. Neff, Philadelphia's director of health, has sent out a warning against pneumonia and a list of "don'ts" in which he says: Don't drink alcohol. Users of alcohol are more prone to pneumonia than other persons, because it denudes the tissues and makes the body more susceptible to disease germs. Don't sit or stand in wet shoes or stockings. If your feet are wet keep moving until you have an opportunity to remove the wet apparel. Don't go put into the cold when you are overheated. Don't go out unless you are warmly clad. Don't throw off heavy wraps because the weather is not as cold as it was the day before. Don't neglect to loosen your coats or wraps when in a trolley car or store.

"Blue Danube" and "Merry Widow."

The changes that time effects in values is seen in the fact that for the best known song and waltz of Johann Strauss, which was played in two hemispheres, "On the Blue Danube," thirty-five years ago Strauss received 600 kronen, while his publisher made 300,000 kronen by the same waltz. Lehár has received up to the present time in Vienna, America, and other places one and a half million kronen.—Vienna Letter to London Telegraph.

If Fire Were Kept Out.

If the first fire had been kept out of the state of Washington the annual growth of the new timber crop would be fully the equal of the annual timber cut, and the land cut over in the fifties would today be ready to yield more feet an acre than did the original cutting.—American Forestry.

LINCOLN'S QUESTION.

It Stilled the Storm of Applause For His Opponent, Douglas.

Professor James T. McLeary of Mankato, Minn., who for fourteen years represented a district of his state in congress, told this Lincoln story:

"A friend of mine told me that when a boy he attended with his father one of the famous Lincoln-Douglas debates in Illinois. My friend's father was a Lincoln man, but the place in which that particular debate took place was a Douglas stronghold.

"Douglas spoke first, and he was frequently interrupted by vociferous applause. The cheering and the hand-clapping at the end lasted four or five minutes. When Lincoln was introduced the crowd broke out into cheers for Douglas and kept it up for several minutes. Lincoln meanwhile waited patiently.

"When at length the enthusiasm had subsided Lincoln extended his long right arm for silence. When he had partly got this he said in an impressive tone, 'What an orator Judge Douglas is!'

"This unexpected tribute to their friend set the audience wild with enthusiasm. When this applause had run its course Lincoln, extending his hand again, this time obtained silence more easily.

"What a fine presence Judge Douglass has!" exclaims the speaker earnestly. Again the cheering was almost fatal to the tribute.

"How well, how well!" says the audience. How apt his illustrations are!—sitting up like a soldier, and standing up like a soldier, and all in Judge Douglas!

"Then when the audience had again become silent at his call Lincoln pointed forward and said:

NEW TALES THAT ARE TOLD

Rather Embarrassing.

James Wilson, secretary of agriculture, knows pretty much all there is to know about trees, vegetables and soils, but he does not shine as a French scholar. Accordingly he was at a disadvantage when he presided at a dinner at the Cosmos club, where many of the speeches were in French. All the speakers were distinguished scientists, and they dwelt on subjects of an abstruse nature. Naturally when their remarks were in French they were puzzling to the secretary.

"DO YOU KNOW EXACTLY WHAT THAT FELLOW WAS SAYING?"

Finally a particularly demonstrative Frenchman began to talk about fields and vineyards and how to improve them according to modern methods. He was applauded several times, and when he came to his peroration, which was full of long words and set off with many powerful gestures, the handclapping and cheering grew so boisterous that Mr. Wilson thought it incumbent on him to join in the demonstration of approval. As he got a late start in the handclapping he was still at it when the rest of the assemblage had quieted down.

"Do you know exactly what that fellow was saying?" asked a friend of the secretary when the Frenchman had taken his seat.

"No-o, not exactly," admitted Mr. Wilson, "but I applauded because everybody else was doing it, and I wanted to be polite."

"He was saying," explained the friend, "that you were the best secretary of agriculture in the world."

MISCONCEPTION OF AN ANCIENT ACTRESS

Viewed the Passage of Time From Wrong Angle.

Miss Elisabeth Marbury, the well-known dramatic agent of New York, told at a tea at the Colony club a story both amusing and true.

"To grow old properly," she said, "is to grow old keeping the mind and the heart young. Few accomplish this feat, but all think they do so. That misconception prevents old age from being tragic."

You all know Helen Dash. She is a great-grandmother now, but she was once a famous actress. She clung to the stage to the very last; she saw year by year her applause lessen, her salary decrease and her press notices shorten. Yet do you think that Helen Dash was unhappy? Not at all.

"When one night in her sixty-eighth year Helen in a new role got, instead of tumultuous applause, cold silence and even a few venomous hisses she took the contrepunte calmly, and on the way home she said to her maid, a worn old woman like herself:

"I think I'll retire. Acting is thankless work nowadays. The public has aged so."

Why He Was a Baptist.

The Rev. Dr. Henry Haslam, pastor of the Gethsemane Baptist church, at Eighteenth street and Columbia avenue, was delivering an address the other day at a ministers' meeting:

"I once knew a Baptist, an old man of the hard shell order. To him the Baptist religion was the only one.

"One day a friend of his, who was a Methodist, stopped him on the street.

"You know there are other ways besides the Baptist way of getting to heaven," he said.

"My Baptist friend drew himself up.

"That's true; there may be," he said with withering scorn, "but no gentleman would take advantage of them."

The Inscrutable Face.

Speaker Cannon knows a lot about poker, and he makes no secret of it. Henry B. F. Macfarland, formerly commissioner of the District of Columbia, has a face that always wears a smiling, bland expression. Mr. Macfarlan! might witness the burning of Rome without changing his expression at all.

One night he sat opposite the speaker at a banquet.

Mr. Cannon turned to the man on his left and said, "Do you know what I'd do if I had a face like that of my friend Macfarland?"

"What would you do?" asked the man.

"I'd play poker for a living," said the speaker, "and I'd grow rich at it."

THE KICKER.

An Entirely Different Sort of Man
From the Growler.

There is a world of difference between the man who kicks and the man who growls. The man who kicks—who truly, earnestly and honestly kicks—is a good kind of man to have about. He kicks because things are not as they should be, and he proposes to correct them. The man who growls is merely a negative quality. He may know that things are not going right, but he hasn't any idea of trying to do anything about it. He just sits round and complains.

You remember Mark Twain's story about the kicker and how successful he was in securing everything that belonged to him. He was a producer in the best sense of the word, just as every man who kicks in the right way is certain to be. You probably know just such men—men who are chronic kickers. Let anything go wrong and they go "up in the air" in a minute, but you can depend upon it that that particular thing will never go wrong again if they can prevent it.

A kicker may not be the most agreeable person to have around, yet he is a healthful factor in almost any establishment. He has his faults, but it is possible to overlook them for the sake of the productive value that he represents.

As to the growler—there seems to be no place for him in the work of the world. He may complain loudly and whine and talk about other people, but he remedies no faults, he repairs no looks; he just makes trouble.

That is the difference between the kicker and the growler.—Business.

WEB OF THE SPIDER.

Thousands of Strands in Each of Its Silky Threads.

For a long time the web of the spider was supposed to be a simple strand of wavy silk, but later it was found that such was far from being the case.

Under the microscope we can get at the secret of the spinning very nicely. We see that there are either four or six teats on the spider near the lower part of the abdomen, almost exactly similar to the teats of a cow. From these issue four or six strands, as the case may be. But these strands themselves are not simple, but are composed of at least a thousand fibers each, for it has been proved that in each teat there is a sieve of at least a thousand holes, through which the silky matter is strained. Thus we see that, fine as is a spider's web, it is yet composed of from 4,000 to 6,000 fibers.

Leuwenhoek states that it would take at least 4,000,000 of the completed threads to make a thread as strong as a silk thread of the size of a hair.

As to the color of the thread, our ordinary spiders spin one of a uniform gray color. But in the riotous tropics there are found spiders that spin variegated webs. One particularly produces red, yellow and black threads, which it binds together with a pleasing color effect.

In the thread of the spider lies dormant a great industry once it is properly studied.—Popular Magazine.

Struck a Coincidence.

It was the hour of family confidences. Mr. Buggins had finished his evening papers and in slippers and dressing gown was toasting his toes before the asbestos fire log, while the wife of his bosom was putting a few stitches in the table cover she was doing for Aunt Mary.

"I did something today that I've been screwing up my courage to do for a long time," said Mrs. Buggins.

"Yes?" said Mr. Buggins, mildly interested. "What was it?"

"You know that odious Mrs. Bjones?" replied Mrs. Buggins. "Well, I paid her a call that I have owed for nearly a year."

"My dear, I can sympathize with you," said Mr. Buggins. "Today, by a strange coincidence, I paid that odious Mrs. Bjones a bill I had owed him for quite as long"—New York Times.

Throne Jewels.

In the "gold pantry" at Windsor castle, one of England's chief royal palaces, is the gold tiger's head taken from Tipu Sahib's throne in 1789. It is life size, and the teeth and eyes are of rock crystal. Another relic captured at the same time is the jeweled bird called the umia, shaped like a pigeon, with a peacock tail. The feathers blaze with precious stones, and a great emerald hangs from its breast. According to an old Indian legend whoever owns this bird will rule India.

It Depends.

Bill—they tell me that a goat eats twelve times its weight in a year.

Jill—Does that represent much food, do you suppose?

"Well, it all depends whether what the goat eats happens to be paper covered novels or lead pipe!"—Yonkers Statesman.

An Exception.

"Emerson says there is always a best way of doing everything."

"Is there?" I wonder if he ever found a best way of wearing a pair of shoes that were about a size too small?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

No Chance.

"Do you always do a little more than is expected of you?"

"No; my boss always expects a little more than you can do."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Sincerity and pure truth in what age soever find their opportunity and advantage.—Montague.

of our system were shown on the canvas to illustrate the subject, which was handled in a clear, intelligent way, in spite of the fact that the speaker was somewhat handicapped by the limitations of his voice. It was in every way a commendable effort and those present felt that they had added not a little to their knowledge of the starry heavens.

—Last Thursday afternoon Lexington Chapter, D. A. R., held its monthly meeting with Mrs. Charles M. Greene, resident at 78 Marlboro street, Boston; Mrs. H. E. Crosby presided. The afternoon was enriched by a paper prepared by Mrs. Greene and read with fine dramatic effect by Mrs. Miriam Bagley. It was entitled "How Boston women saved the State House on Beacon Hill."

—The funeral of Maurice Ahern was held at his late residence, 61 Mystic street Monday morning. The services were held in St. Agnes' church, where a high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Joseph P. Lawless. They were attended by a large number and many floral tributes were sent by friends. The bearers were Luke M. Munroe, James Hardon, Timothy O'Leary, James J. McDonagh, John J. Lyons and Cornelius J. Coughlin. Interment was in Mt. Pleasant cemetery. Mr. Ahern was one of the oldest residents of the town. He was born in 1827. He was an active member of the Holy Name society connected with St. Agnes' church, and had been a member since the society was organized in the church. He is survived by his wife, two daughters and five sons, one son, Daniel F. Ahern, being the grand knight of Arlington Council, K. of C.

—Rev. N. E. Wood, D. D., was suffering from a cold of a bronchial nature and so did not occupy his pulpit last Sunday. In his absence his talented son, the Rev. Nathan R. Wood, pastor of the Baptist church at West Medford, preached. He took as his text, "But was tempted in all points like as we are, yet without sin." It was a touching and able sermon. In the evening, Mr. E. Nelson Blake conducted the service and was in every way equal to the occasion at short notice and gave one of his helpful and most excellent addresses. His wife added not a little to the enjoyment of the services all day by her singing, and it proved a happy farewell for all. The Blakes leave to-day for their winter sojourn in the south. Mr. Blake has the mental and physical strength of a man twenty years his junior (he is eighty) and it is an inspiration to all his friends and an example for the younger generations to follow and admire.

—Eva Mae, the young wife of Mr. Wm. F. Robinson, of 15 Albamarie street, of this town, passed away on Jan. 12, after two years of invalidism. The family has resided here since July last. The funeral took place last Sabbath afternoon at two o'clock, at the late residence of the deceased, when the services were conducted by Rev. John Wild, pastor of the Congregational church at Medford, the former home of the family. Beautiful flowers and music by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Richardson of Medford, were touching tributes to the deceased by many warm friends. The selections sung included, "Sister in the arms of Jesus," and "Will the Circle be Unbroken?" The burial was in Oak Grove cemetery, Medford. Mr. Robinson was aged but twenty-three years. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben E. Salsbury, survive her and made their home with the young couple.

—The "Telegram," a daily paper printed at Elmira, N. Y., on date of Dec. 25th, published the following:—

"In spite of all efforts by relatives and friends, no trace can be gained of the present whereabouts of Mrs. Cassie V. Gorder-McDuffee, of Elmira, N. Y. Mrs. McDuffee was last heard from in a letter written at Arlington, Mass., on September 23. In a letter addressed to a friend in this city Mrs. McDuffee stated that she was then residing in Arlington, having obtained a position in a wealthy family caring for two children. She did not give the names of her employers, and did not give any address by which she might be reached. On the same day that she wrote the letter giving the last clue to her whereabouts, her father, Mark Van Gorder, a resident of Lawrenceville, Pa., died unexpectedly in that village. From his estate there is a sum of money left her, but in spite of all efforts, no trace of her can be found. Letters and inquiries sent to Arlington have been returned with the statement that she cannot be located. Mrs. McDuffee was about forty years of age, slight build and with hair partly gray. Any information regarding her present address should be sent to this paper at once."

We have several times published inquiries in regard to the party named, but it has brought no information. If any one knows of any such person let the editors know.

—Arlington High school had a walk-away with the Lexington High school hockey team Monday afternoon of this week, winning by 18 to 1. The local team outplayed the visitors in every way, and proved too fast for their defense. Capt. Osgood made six goals, while Bell, Lowe and Hadley also played a fine game. The summary:—

Drum Corps Dance.

Lexington Drum Corps, after a period of inactivity as patrons of an annual dance since 1905, resumed their annual parties on Friday evening of last week, Jan. 13, by giving a dance in Town Hall. Their efforts to revive these parties, which were formerly the most popular of the season, met with great success and the affair must have proved gratifying to the committee representing the Drum Corps in every respect. Edmond Childs was chairman of the committee the other being Walter Rose, Edmond Maguire, Philip Clark, Edmond Goulding and Carlton Reed. But the entire corps seemed to enter into the spirit of the enterprise and thus it was that the dance was largely attended, greatly enjoyed and an occasion to reflect no little credit on this military organization of juniors which on the other hand we may almost call a veteran organization, because it has been in continuous existence, with more or less activity, since 1893, a period of eighteen years. Several of the original members were present, but of course the younger and the present active members were those who participated largely in the dance.

The party was patronized by Mrs. Edward B. Worthen, Mrs. A. E. Locke and Mrs. Jas. Woodbury Smith. Mesdames Worthen and Smith are wives of original members of the Corps. They were in pale pink evening dresses which contrasted with Mrs. Locke's handsome white reception dress very effectively and were exceedingly becoming to their wearers. These ladies received at the head of the hall on the east side and were presented to arriving guests by the ushers, Walter Locke, Henry Jackson, Harold Piper and Clayton Locke. While the reception was in progress, between eight and nine o'clock, Daggett's orchestra gave a concert program which they rendered in a manner to give the greatest pleasure to those who enjoy music. Mr. Chas. H. Bugbee, Lexington's tree warden, is a member of the orchestra. The old time popular melody, "Darling I am growing old," was one of the most attractive selections played and was warmly applauded.

Very beautiful were the decorations of Town Hall. Not that they were gaudy, but because of the great taste shown in their arrangement. Quantities of laurel was used, while grouped on the platform were clipped bay trees and other foliage mingled with the foliage of the purple beech which made a striking contrast to the green, especially in the way they were combined. During the evening light refreshments were served and the party was full of the keenest pleasure from beginning to its end. It was of course a "bud" party and the young girls and their gallant partners made a group of youthful gallants that made all feel young once again. Some of the well known people of the town cherishing the young people were the Jas. W. Smiths, the E. B. Worthens, the J. F. Russells, the V. E. Lockes, Mrs. J. Fred Hutchinson, Mr. Geo. H. Childs and wife, Mrs. Foster Sherburne, Mrs. W. Wadsworth Reed, Mrs. Edwin Read, W. Roger Greeley, Mrs. Arthur Whitney, and others, but these are sufficient to show the character of the party and its patrons. The ladies were in handsome evening or reception toilettes while the young girls were out in their prettiest frocks. The Drum Corps is officered this year by Edmund S. Childs, president; Clayton G. Locke, vice-president; Carlton G. Reed, secretary and treasurer; Francis Burke, drum major.

Public Installation.

January 13 was quite a red letter day in Lexington Grand Army circles, bringing together as it did the bulk of those connected with Post 119 in any way and commanding the attendance of people prominent in National and Department circles. It was the installation of officers chosen for 1911. Woman's Relief Corps No. 97 held its service in the afternoon and to obtain larger space leased for this function, secured Historic Hall. Here in the presence of a large company of ladies and a group of comrades from Post 119, Mrs. Lou Stewart Wadsworth, National Patriotic Instructor, assisted by Mrs. Hattie T. Gott, Past-Prest, of Corps 27, installed the following list to serve for 1911:—

President—Ella R. Jones.
Senior-Vice Prest.—Chastine McDonald.
Junior-Vice Prest.—Lizzie Fitch.
Secretary—Mattie Gurney.
Treasurer—Emily Bacon.
Chaplain—Marietta Davis.
Conductor—Minnie Britton.
Guard—Caroline Evans.
Patriotic Instructor—Fannie Kauffmann.
Press Correspondent—Ellen Locke.
Musician—Mabel Gurney.
Assistant Conductor—Annie Pero.
Assistant Guard—Barbara Bean.
Color Bearer No. 1—Margaret Carson.
" " " 2—Isabelle Scott.
" " " 3—Bernice Glenn.
" " " 4—Elle Warner.

Mrs. Wadsworth has an attractive personality, in letter perfect in the ritual, and as a platform speaker has few equals. On this occasion she appeared at her best. In token of appreciation of her service she was presented with a Lexington souvenir spoon, her assistant receiving a picture. Mrs. Amy Morse has served Corps 97 for three years, and the Corps presented her with a cut glass fern dish in silver case, suitably engraved. These presentations and brief addresses closed the afternoon.

The officers of George G. Meade Post 119 were installed in the evening. This service was preceded by a substantial supper served in the banquet hall, furnished as usual by the members of the Corps. At 8 o'clock the company of ladies and gentlemen were called to order in G. A. R. Hall and Past-Dept. Com. W. A. Wetherell (now National Ass't Adj. Gen.) was introduced as installing officer. He had as his assistant Past-Com. W. W. Montgomery of Newton. Familiar as many comrades are with this installation work, we do not believe any one ever saw it so attractively performed as on this occasion and we compliment the officers on introducing features not only new but a great addition. The following is the full roster of Post 119 for 1911:—

Commander—George N. Gurney.
Senior-Vice Commander—Fred'k Davis.
Junior Vice Commander—Geo. Kimball.
Quartermaster—John N. Morse.
Chaplain—George W. Wright.
Surgeon—Chas. M. Parker.
Adjutant—Everett S. Locke.
Patriotic Instructor—Chas. G. Kauffmann.
Officer of Day—Chas. G. Kauffmann.
Officer of Guard—H. H. Tyler.
Sergeant Major—Wm. B. Foster.
M. S. Sergeant—Albert L. MacDonald.

The guest of honor on this occasion was National Adj. Gen. E. B. Stillings, and his explanation of the pension bill now before Congress, and the bill proposed by National Encampment committee, was intensely interesting. The other speakers were installing Officer Wetherell, Mrs. Wadsworth, Charles S. Parker and W. W. Montgomery. The exercises were interspersed with music by Post 119 orchestra.

O. O. F. Installations.

Monday evening in Odd Fellows Hall, Arlington, the officers of Ida F. Butler Lodge of Rebekahs were installed. There was a large attendance of the members and many visitors from the lodges of the district. In all it proved one of the most successful events of its kind ever held by this lodge. The evening closed with a social hour, when refreshments were served by caterer Hicks. The officers were installed by District Deputy Noble Grand, Miss Bessie Garside of Wakefield, assisted by Miss Oliver of the same place acting as marshal. Mrs. Byron C. Earle, the retiring initial officer of the lodge, planned the exercises of the installation and was on a par with the other efforts of her successful administration. The officers installed are resident of the different sections of Lexington and Arlington and therefore represent quite a wide as well as largely inhabited territory. They are as follows:—

Noble Grand—Emma Louisa Hovey.
Vice Grand—Henrietta L. Peppard.
Rec. Sec.—Alice M. Prince.
Treasurer—M. Annie Needham.
Financial Sec.—Alice Whittier.
Conductor—Charlotte Rennie.
Chaplain—Gertrude Finley.
Warden—Lillian Lindsey.
Inside Guard—Mary W. Austin.
Outside Guard—William Peppard.
Rt. S. N. G.—Martha C. Spaulding.
Lt. S. N. G.—Annie B. Holbrook.
Lt. S. V. G.—Emma Hadley.
Lt. S. V. G.—Elizabeth Bennett.
Lt. S. Chaplain—Hazel Gray.
Lt. S. Chaplain—Marie Schuhmacher.
Rt. S. P. N. G.—Miss Marie Schuhmacher.
Lt. S. P. N. G.—Carrie B. Earle.

Wednesday evening was certainly a red letter date in the annals of Bethel Lodge, I. O. O. F., when the officers held a public installation at which male friends were guests to the number of fifty. The lodge turned out one hundred and eight strong, making a company filling Odd Fellows Hall at Arlington to its fullest capacity. There was a distinguished group of brothers, high up in the order, present to conduct the ceremonies of installation. These included Dist. Deputy Grand Master Jas. L. Wilmet, D. G. M. Gerton Fernald, Dist. Deputy G. Warden Henry C. Chapelle, D. G. G. See, Mark Meacham, D. G. S. G. Geo. A. Payne, Jr., D. G. Treas. Oscar Pulkins, D. G. Grand Chaplain, Albert C. Partridge, Dist. G. I. Guardian Justin A. Duncan. The work was performed in a most interesting manner to the visitors and with great credit to the lodge. The result was that at the close a number of application blanks were made out. The officers installed were as follows:—

Noble Grand—John A. Lindsey.
Vice Grand—Edwin L. Curtis.
Rec. Sec.—Chas. S. Richardson.
Financial Sec.—Wm. B. Bunker.
Conductor—Nath'l E. Whittier.
Warden—Everett S. Chapman.
Chaplain—Geo. A. Sawyer.
Guard—Alfred E. Peppard.
Rt. S. N. G.—Chas. E. Hadley.
Rt. S. V. G.—Wm. A. Prince.
Lt. S. V. G.—Ernest Williamson.
Lt. G.—Wm. A. Finley.
O. G.—William Gratto.

A "Smoker" followed installation in which almost every one, to a man, indulged in the fragrant weed, putting all into a mellow mood for the social hour, during which Caterer Hardy served delicious ices, coffee, etc. Not the least enjoyable feature of the evening was the playing of Seig's orchestra of several pieces. It gave great pleasure to musical ears and was a kind courtesy extended to the lodge through Noble Grand Lindsey. It is a matter worthy of note that Chas. S. Richardson was installed to an office in Bethel Lodge for the thirty-fourth consecutive time on this occasion and he has held the office of recording Secretary for twenty-eight years. This is really a remarkable record, but it shows the unusual regard in which he is held by his brother members of the lodge. We are not sure but what he has arrived at the honor of being called the Dean of Bethel Lodge.

Mid-Winter Field Day.

Boston Market Gardeners' Association enjoyed a field day on Jan. 14, choosing Arlington farms for the tour of inspection, confining themselves, however, to the extensive Moore and Rowson farms. How much of interest these model farms afford is known in a general way by most of our readers. It is easy, therefore, to understand that a dull day, a raw northeast wind and deep mud in many places did not interfere materially with the enjoyment of the visitors, all of whom are engaged in solving the problems of securing largest results at lowest cost; in seeking to know where science can be applied in place of old-time methods in retaining for this section the leadership against the sharp competition of places where the weather conditions are more favorable and the soil more productive.

The company numbered about one hundred and fifty and the entire forenoon was spent in the tour of inspection. At noon the company gathered at Grand Army Hall, where a substantial lunch was served informally in the banquet hall, each supplying his own needs from a bountifully spread table. About two o'clock the company was called to order by President Hall, who expressed pleasure in seeing so large a number of members present. Routine business disposed of, reports of committees followed, H. W. Rawson reporting for the legislative committee, and Franklin Wyman for the box committee. It seems there is a controversy between the market men who handle "garden trucks" and the farmers who raise it, about "packages" in which the stuff is sent, the sellers demanding that the box or barrel "goes with the goods." That the farmers will not stand for this was shown by unanimous votes to sustain its committee in a comprehensive scheme to control the situation.

Business disposed of, Prof. Lamson, a practical man now engaged in a scientific school, read an intensely interesting paper on farm cultivation, "rotation in crops" being the special feature. Large charts suspended in clear view of all present made his paper of added value. The speaker said this is called the French method of cultivation, but we now know that centuries before the French farmers worked out this excellent scheme, the Chinese had used it.

The meeting closed with a show of slides on the screen covering the widest range of farm cultivation, trenching, cultivating, harvesting, sorting, storing; vehicles used in transportation and other interesting features. Places in the west, south and east were shown, the whole making an object lesson in farming that must prove of value. Prof. Hall had not expected to be the "lecturer," but to our view no one could have more clearly or interestingly explained the various scenes shown on the canvas.

Mrs. S. F. Hicks Deceased.

Edith C., the wife of Mr. S. Frederick Hicks, died Sunday morning, Jan. 15th, at the residence of the family, 93 Pleasant street, Arlington. Mrs. Hicks' death brings sadness into the homes of a wide circle of friends, for her bright, cheery manner made friends everywhere she went and during these past few months, when those near and dear realized that she was fast slipping from them, their devotion had been a touching testimonial of their love and loyalty. Mrs. Hicks was the second daughter of Edward and Mary

A. (Field) Chapman, who for a good many years owned the house which, until some years ago, occupied the site almost opposite the Schouler estate on Pleasant street. The street leading down to Spy Pond has been put through the land and named after Mrs. Hicks' father. Mrs. Hicks married Mr. Hicks in October, 1880, at Framingham, the family having moved there. There were two children born to the couple, Florence C. and S. Bradford Hicks, both of whom reside with their parents, the former being a graduate of Wellesley, and the latter of Harvard College, 1910. The family has been a most devoted one in their relations to each other, Mrs. Hicks finding her greatest pleasure in seeing her husband honored by his townsmen (he was one of the most popular and successful Selectmen Arlington has ever had), and her children by their college fraternities. She was interested in the church work of the First Parish (Unitarian) and gave her support to all that was highest and noblest in life. She was a charter member of Arlington Woman's Club and prominent in the work of the Together Lend-a-Hand.

The funeral occurred on Wednesday, at two o'clock, from Mt. Auburn chapel. The devotional service was conducted by Rev. Frederic Gill, of the Unitarian church. The Orpheus Quartet sang three selections very beautifully. They were, "Eternal Goodness," "Cast thy burden on the Lord," and "Safely now the light of day." The funeral was in charge of Charles E. Hartwell. There was a procession of flowers. The remains were treated. Besides the immediate family, Mrs. Hicks leaves three sisters—Mrs. Winthrop Smith of Philadelphia, Miss Fanzie Chapman and Mrs. Frank Eastman, both of Framingham.

Roll-call—Orthodox Church.
